Location, location, location! Not only is this charming home in the desirable Historic Old Northeast neighborhood, it's incredibly close to vibrant downtown St. Petersburg and its incredible waterfront park system. From your first steps onto the front porch, you'll be captivated.

Called "Buttercup Cottage," this early 1900's home has been lovingly restored (and improved) to capture all of its original charm while offering all of the modern conveniences you're looking for. The living room fireplace is flanked by original built-in display niches, but has been upgraded to natural gas.

Vintage glass door knobs, crown molding and refinished heart of pine wood floors are among the features that have been preserved. The baths have all been updated to have efficient fixtures, while retaining their original styles. The kitchen cabinets were custom built to match the original Shaker design, but now they feature pull-out drawers and tons of storage! South American red granite counter tops make a great statement against the white Subway tile and black appliances.

There are two spacious bedrooms and two full baths in the main house, and a "casita" with separate entrance adds another bedroom and bath. Between them is the dramatic screened pool & spa - jump right in!

You'll love being in this "front porch" neighborhood! Make an appointment to see it for yourself. (A contract is pending; backups are being accepted.)
